Free-Text Notes:

We are first-time parents looking for a nanny to help care for our 6-month-old baby girl. Both my partner and I work hybrid schedules, going into the office on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and need someone reliable to care for our little one on the days we are home. We are feeling quite anxious about leaving her with someone new, as this is our first experience with childcare outside of family.

It's important for us to find someone who is not only CPR-certified but also has experience specifically with infants, as we want to ensure our baby is safe and well cared for. We would prefer a nanny who understands the unique needs of a young child and can follow her feeding and nap routines.

We would love a caregiver who can also engage her in age-appropriate activities to support her development. Ideally, we are looking for someone who can communicate openly with us about our baby's progress and any concerns that may arise.

We do not have any pets, so allergies should not be an issue. We would appreciate someone who is patient and can help ease our worries as we navigate this new chapter in our lives. Thank you for your assistance!
