Free-Text Notes:

We are expecting our first child in three months and are seeking a night-nurse or newborn-care specialist to help us during those crucial early weeks. Since this is our first experience with a newborn, we want someone who can guide us and provide reassurance as we navigate this new chapter.

We are looking for assistance three nights a week, ideally from 8 PM to 8 AM, so we can get some rest while knowing our baby is in capable hands. It's important that candidates have NICU or postpartum experience, as this would give us peace of mind in case any unexpected situations arise.

We would appreciate someone who is compassionate, patient, and has a calm demeanor. Additionally, if they have experience with breastfeeding support or infant sleep training techniques, that would be a bonus for us as new parents.

We live in the Eastside and would prefer a nanny who is local or has reliable transportation. Please include references from previous families in your application. Thank you for your help in finding the right fit for our family!
